

“From These Days to Future”: A Collective Video in Response to Covid-19 Pandemic

This document is initiated by a narrative practitioner İclal Eskioglu Aydın from Turkey in a group work process that explored the skills, knowledge, and values in response to Covid-19 pandemic. The group work is done with a group of psychologists who are master students at İbn Haldun University in Turkey.

In the group work, the group members wanted to share their skills, knowledge, and values through a video. They prepared the video with the photos they took before. The group members have a message to the audiences of this video:

“We want to share our responses to Covid-19 and we wish this video will enable contributions between us (we and the audiences) to enrich and thicken the stories of our skills, knowledge and values in this process. If you want to be a part of our project in order to enrich our response stories, you can check out the link (below the video) to the questions that we prepared with the hope that can help you. We are really interested in your responses and contributions.”

Click Here for watching the video

For responses to the video “From These Days to Future” Click here